I live in Zibo, Shandong, PRC. I visit northern Minnesota often because of the clean air and pristine waters. I am in utter disbelief that this idyllic ambience could be willingly threatened by the actions of inactions of the people, the stewards of the region.

Please add BLACK LAKE to the list of rice lakes endangered by sulfied mining. This should be intolerable. Furthermore, please take responsibility and act to return these waters to their original state to safeguard the habitats and the people whose health and progeny depend on your act.
