

Tim Harmening

I agree with soil samples from the landowners so we dont overapply and I also agree with the farmer that stated that the farmers that use commercial fertilizer should be checked on were and how much they are applying you blame the livestock producers who I think do a very good job of applying there manure and since I sell it to my neighbor why would I waste it. Maybe you should start looking at the urban areas for pollution everyone likes a nice green lawn and that runs right of the yard onto the street and into the storm sewer and right to the river or pond and when do you put that fertilizer on right before a rain that fertilizer isnt worked in.