

Therese OConnor

Minnesota's water and air quality is very important to not just myself, but to every Minnesotan. PFAS's are a type of a pollutant that should be a concern to us all. The fact that these are forever chemicals and their levels continue to rise in all States should cause alarm. We know the health risks of these chemicals.

So I am asking that the MPCA put our environment and the health of each and every Minnesotan first, and draft the strongest limits possible, as to the least amount of PSFA's allowed into the environment (which really should be zero); to adapt stronger guidelines for monitoring groundwater; for regular reporting; for accountability from 3M and any & all other companies; and for community engagement.

Thank you for your time.