

Susan Dewey

We only have so much safe water. Protecting it is essential. If we have learned anything in our lives as humans on this planet it's that what we don't know far exceeds what we think we do. Disrupting our ecosystems can happen quickly, and what disrupts one part eventually disrupts the whole. And perhaps undoing the damage is much longer term than we ever anticipate. Let's acknowledge our limitations and err on the side of caution -- always!