

John Weiss

There is a need for more emphasis on farmers controlling pollution. Certainly voluntarily is best but what happens when that doesn't work? Are there ways to force them to do it? They own the land but don't own the water, we all own the water. And is anything being done in the Minnesota River that is the biggest contributor to sediment?