My family of 7 loves living on the Iron Range. We wouldn't live here if we felt that the water we are drinking is harming our children.

We believe that US Steel operates ethically and in the best interests of the public. For that reason, we believe they should be allowed to operate with realistic environmental expectations.

The sulfate standard is not realistic environmental expectations. Wild rice is found in abundant amounts downstream from US Steel. Imposing this standard will have a downstream effect. It won't be more wild rice. It will be the decimation of the mining industry.
