

JL Angell

Rule of thumb is always that exceeding established limits causes harms and is against the public's interest and thus there must be scientific research meeting a consensus of experts standard to ever consider such a proposal--which definitely does not exist in reality.
Hold them to the current limit.