

Lee Gorsha

To the MPCA,

Why not put the water standard in place all at once so it is fair to all? If this is to be placed on cities too, then doing it this way will bring the cost for everyone into play. Why is there no proactive solutions or studies on the MPCA website? MPCA has help to fund studies on sulfate/sulfide but nothing on the website on studies of climate change, disease or improper harvesting?

Over 50 years of mining, wild rice still grows. Over in Wisconsin and Michigan wild rice has disappeared. There are no mines there!

The Ojibwe over in Wisconsin and Michigan blame climate change and people. Here in Minnesota, the same Ojibwe blame the mines - why?

Fore Solution, In 1972 a California farmer by the name of Vince Vanderford took Minnesota wild rice seeds to California and the rest is history, it is a commercial success for California. Why not do the same? Build wild rice lakes and grow wild rice! It is a great solution for all.

Lee Gorsha
Virginia, MN Resident