

Christopher James

We live in a global economy, even though Nippon Steel has made a promise not to idle mines this enforcement of this standard would be seen as a reason for shutting down the mine as uncompetitive.

I do believe that we have to honor native peoples and work to achieve a new standard that is workable for every one. But this strict standard based on old science is not a workable outcome.