

Tashina Perry

As an indigenous resident of the state of Minnesota, I oppose harmful sulfate levels and mining pollution brought forth by private interest companies in our delicate watersheds.

There's a prophecy on why Ojibwe people came to reside here and that's because of the wild rice. There's food that grows on water. Due to climate change, urbanization and pollution, our natural food sources are becoming more scarce.

We have an inherent right to our traditional food sovereignty. Miigwech. Thank you.
