

Jeffery Baker

As an Iron Range miner, I would like to simply ask for a fact based standard. One that is based on the most recent information and science, not science based in 1970. Why should mines be held to a lower sulfate standard than drinking water? That simply doesn't make sense. If mining jobs are lost we cannot replace our incomes on the Iron Range with another industry. My family will move. This impacts the tax base, student enrollment at local schools, etc. I am in favor of Keetac getting a variance.
