

Edith Thiel

We do not need dairy expansion of this size in Minnesota. We already have enough dairy farms in Minnesota that collect subsidies from the government to maintain their business models. There is no benefit for consumers to have this new expansion, and there is certainly no benefit to Minnesota land and waterways. We will be increasing pollution and using vital resources to benefit one company. This is also a company that relies upon automation for its large complexes; in other words, it will not add significant employment opportunities for Minnesotans. Most likely, it will force other small farmers to sell. Please do not allow corporations such as Riverview to consume such an abundance of natural resources from the state of Minnesota.