I support the proposed expansion of this dairy. It's often the small things a business does that show how much they care about their community. Offering free cones on National Ice Cream Day is a simple gesture, but it shows the kind of relationship they want to have with the people around them.

Through my work with the lead farm partnered with Waukon Dairy and Riverview LLP, I have seen firsthand how well the operation is run. The employees treat each other with kindness and respect, and it's clear that everyone takes pride in their work. I have also never seen such a large facility maintained so well.

Expanding the dairy would only strengthen its positive impact by supporting the local economy and continuing to create opportunities for area farmers and landowners to grow crops for the dairy. From what I've seen, this is an operation that values its employees, neighbors, and community.
