I am a farmer who works with Riverview Dairy in our area. They have been an incredible positive influence into our township, county, our churches, our schools. They do exactly as they say they will do. With this we have a very trusting relationship, (something that's hard to find these days). I believe our state agencies have also found this all to be accurate statements. Riverview follows the rules to the letter of the law, and if they have a mistake or accident. It will be corrected or fixed, whatever is needed for a solution. They are very sensitive for neighbors, the environment and their relationships in the communities they have facilities. Their facilities are a standard above all I'm aware of in Minnesota. Incredibly clean, odor controlled, their employees are great to work with. When they were first considering a facility in our region and those few concerned citizens who had some oppositions, have had a complete change of mind after touring the facility and being a neighbor now for several years and seen how Riverview does business and treats the region, have no concerns and are very supportive. With the above statements in consideration, I fully support Riverview's permit for its West River Dairy expansion.

Sincerely, Perry Skaurud
