As a neighbor of West River Dairy and a home owner by the well (400' from my front door) that is to provide the water for the sight expansion I would like to share a few comments.

-In recent years I've been involved in the installation of Riverviews manure application infrastructure, there was much planning on how to keep the manure from reaching any streams/rivers if they would happen to have a spill.

-The location of the well that they plan to use is in an area where the aquifer is continuously being replenished.

-With the integrity I've seen with the people Riverview, if their use of water would affect my personal use of water they would welcome a call and be willing to come up with a solution to fix any issue that might arise. (If you look at Riverviews history in Arizona, you will find they are one of the leaders in water conservation in the state. Also their willingness to help their neighbors with water.)

I would have no concern with Riverviews plan to expand their dairy operations. I would also echo the neighbors that commented on all the benefits of having Riverview in our local economy.

Thanks MPCA for giving us an opportunity to share our comments with you.

Sincerely,

Scott A. Wulf
