

Stuart Knappmiller

Growing up on a 28 cow 228 acre farm, I saw our livestock use Stumptown Creek as a toilet. Our septic tank flowed water into the pasture near a tree I stayed away from.

20 years later, we had no livestock near the creek, a new up to date field for our waste. It would seem to me 26,000 cattle might do more damage than our 28 cows. Dad applied anhydrous ammonia on our neighbor's corn fields. He needed the money to buy the land. That polluted our well water.

Do an EIS.