

Linda Olson

Aside from the obvious pollution issues, mega-dairies like this saturate the market, driving smaller producers out of business. And of course, there's the well-known fact that factory farming is harmful to the animals farmed. They are treated like products, not living beings.