To Whom this may Concern. I live 1.5 miles from a Riverview Dairy. They run a top tier operation, clean facilities, care for the land, do what is right for the local communities, and give great care to the livestock in their operations. These Dairy's I believe help the local Ag community in a number of different ways such as 1. providing manure for fertilizer so we do not need to rely on foreign Fertilizers that are controlled by a few major producers around the world 2. Giving local farmers another place and market to sell their crops they produce, this helps create demand and increases local basis markets that adds value to every producer in the area no matter if you are in favor of this project or against. From the outside looking in I know they follow a long list of rules and regulations; they are doing things correctly. This project and other projects like this add value to rural America. I support their expansion project in Stevens County
