

Laura Haule

It is inconceivable that a dairy operation of this size will not heavily impact soil, water, and air quality in the surrounding area. Riverview Dairy should be required to submit an environmental impact statement. It will drain local water resources and create hundreds of millions of gallons of wastewater annually. Groundwater impacts are unknown. This should not go forward without knowing environmental impacts. Water resources in the area are unknown, so permitting a heavy water user does not sound appropriate. A full environmental Impact Statement should be required.