I'm writing in support of the West River Dairy/feedlot project. As someone with knowledge in animal production, I recognize the importance of responsible livestock operation for local economies and food systems. Modern dairy and feedlot operations are designed with environmental management practices that minimize risks to water, soil, and air quality when properly regulated and monitored. I trust that the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency will ensure that all environmental standards are met.

This project represents an opportunity to strengthen the local economy, create jobs and support agricultural development in the region.

With appropriate oversight, it can operate responsibly and sustainably.

I respectfully support the approval of this project.
