

Amie Tatosian

We should be supporting small, local farmers, not promoting and allowing for massive operations like this one. This is beyond the environmental impact of having so many animals in a small area, it is also about caring about our local farm families that have been around for generations. Mass production is not the answer.