When is it going to end? If the pollution control agency doesn't think it's a good idea why allow it? Shouldn't this require a more extensive review than an EAW? I have invested millions in RE projects and an EAW is not a big deal and this project is huge. I would think the ground water pollution would be unbelievable and the use of all of that water from an "offsite well"? What the does that mean? Where is the well, what aquifer will it draw from and who will that effect? I'm tired of this crap. Projects like this will have a negative effect on my grandchildrens future and further destroy the family farm. That takes the competetivness out of business. Food companies are already screwing us.
