The impact of the amount of water for the 18,000 dairy operation is a major impact. Also, the fact that the manure is spread over such a large area is another reason for environmental impact study. I know this is just looking at the environment, but I would like to know how many farmworkers will be employed and also what they will be paid. Do they have other benefits like health care, vacation, overtime pay, etc. and my last comment is that we are already subsidizing milk because we have a glut of it do we really need more dairy? And if we do, where is the product going, what market will it be in, and how does it affect the existing market now?
