As a resident of Stevens County, I am incredibly concerned about the possible environmental impacts a dairy operation of this size would have. Without a full Environmental Impact Statement, we won't know the costs this massive operation would have on the local waterways and land until after the damage was already done. In particular, I am concerned about manure spills and protection of our waterways and waterfowl and wildlife production areas. A farming operation of this magnitude should have a full Environmental Impact Statement completed before being allowed in operation.
