

Martha Wheeler

There should be a full environmental review of the proposed Riverview Expansion. Expanding the operation to 26,397 animals is a likely disaster for the land, the farmers and the local community. Huge industries should not be allowed to spoil the land, the water, and the living of local community members. Creating this expansion within 5 miles of eight protected wetland and wildlife areas needs to be thoroughly examined. Quality of life is more important than the profits of huge corporations.