I had no idea that this type of factory farm is being proposed in the Morris MN area until I read the StarTribune article in the April 2nd edition.

Having grown up on a farm in northeast South Dakota, I know the damage that these "farms" inflict on our communities. There are so many environmental, ethical, and economic downsides to this proposal. 26000 cows in a confined area is simply wrong. This is about big ag damaging the prospects for smaller farms all across Minnesota. It's wrong on so many levels.

This needs to be reviewed at the very least, with the possible damage scrutinized at every turn. Stopping it is the very best outcome, and is your responsibility as the MPCA. Please live up to your name.
