

PETER Reuss

I don't see where the proposed hyperscale data center coming to Pine Island fits into this. It seems that, if the data center's water goes to the treatment facility, that should be taken into account and will significantly change the needs. This feels like just one more place where the impact of the data center is being brushed under the rug.