

Sheena Postenrieder

As a full time resident of Ruidoso who hikes and spends a significant amount of time outdoors in the Alto and Ruidoso area, I'm highly concerned with the chemicals this plant will release into our air. I'm a cancer survivor and have allergy and breathing issues. My husband and I moved here in an effort to get away from the pollution and air quality issues of a large city. Being able to spend time outside without worrying about what chemicals I'm breathing is extremely important to me. This plant would pollute our air, which has trickle down impact on our soil, water and wildlife. The health of residents and visitors should take precedence over building any sort of operation that will create air pollution in our beautiful mountains.