

Bryan Dombrowski

New Mexico desperately needs the passing of the Advanced Clean Cars and Advanced Clean Trucks Rules. There will never be a silver bullet for mitigating climate change. Instead it will take a coalition of solutions, both big and small, across all sectors and industries to fight back and preserve life as we know it. The Advanced Clean Cars and Advanced Clean Trucks Rules can be a major factor in reducing our state's emissions, creating new jobs, and ensure we are not left behind in future as industry data shows the demand for electric vehicles among Americans is already growing.

There will be challenges and costs to making these necessary changes, but they are so much better than the painful alternative we will face if we simply maintain the status quo