

Ricardo Villa

I refuse to be forced to drive a vehicle that requires electricity to my day today use. I do not want to be reliant on our power grid systems. I need to be able to get up and go and fuel my vehicle at any time of day or night. I refuse to install any type of charging stations at my home. I live in southern New Mexico where I support our oil and gas economy. I drive large four wheel drive vehicles and require towing capacity of diesel capacity. I will not purchase any EV vehicle nor will it fit my day to day lifestyle. That will damage the economy of local New Mexico dealers. We are the second poorest state in the nation and doings things like that will make us the number one poorest state in the nation. That is a shame. No wonder the rest of the country doesn't even know New Mexico is part of the country.