I am against the proposed Advanced Clean Cars II rule. I do not believe at this time the state or country has the infrastructure to support the increase in demand of electricity. In addition it is my belief that the Government is overstepping it's authority on choice of the consumers of the State of New Mexico to purchase the vehicle of their choosing. Consumers should decide if they want to buy EV without mandates. New Mexico is a rural state with much space between cities where charging stations would be viable. I do believe that the technology will catch up at some point, but to arbitrarily pick a date is wrong. Thanks
