

Johnny Alvidrez

I don't think our area in southern NM is the right market for all electric vehicles. I have talked to EV owners that are traveling through town and have said they are having trouble finding working chargers. They are spending a lot of their time driving around looking for a place to charge up. We also don't see a lot of local residents interested in EVs just because a good number work out of town or out in the field.