

JON KLINGEL

My name is Jon Klingel. I've been a resident of New Mexico for almost 50 years. As a volunteer fireman in Alaska, we trained and practiced for fighting petroleum fires. Likely the foam we used was an Aqueous Film Forming Foam containing PFAS (AFFF-PFAS).

Please adopt the PFAS Firefighting Foam Bill rulemaking.

It is obvious that New Mexico needs the authority to control and manage the cleanup of AFFF-PFAS. If this foam is used, it needs to be the responsibility of the user to thoroughly cleanup the area and remove all the foam chemical contamination. The Environment Department must have the authority to monitor the cleanup and insure it was adequately completed.

These toxic chemicals need to be kept out of our environment.

Thank you,
