Jaynie Garcia Bowes

It's important because our state already struggles with drought and limited water resources, and this project raises serious concerns about groundwater consumption, air pollution, and the long-term impact on our environment.