This comment is in regards to EIB 25-11 (R) - Proposed New Regulation, 11.5.7 NMAC - Heat Illness and Injury Prevention. Given the temperatures, climate history and prognosis of New Mexico, this common-sense, life-saving rule should be implemented. Would any of those in opposition to this humane regulation put themselves in harms way as they are asking of others? Would they oppose such a regulation if they themselves were employed working outdoors or in non-air-conditioned indoor environments? Clearly the answer to both questions is no. Support EIB 25-11 (R) - Proposed New Regulation, 11.5.7 NMAC - Heat Illness and Injury Prevention is plain and simple common sense. Make it happen. Thank you for your consideration of my comment.
