

June Parsons

Having been raised on a farm, and ranch, working Summers in 100° plus heat, I can attest that it is hard work and people need a break of at least five minutes every hour. However, more than five minutes an hour is not realistic for Economic production of the food that we need to produce. I recommend that a compromise is found to ensure the economic viability is balanced with a reasonable short break every hour in the shade with plenty of cool water.