

Cathy Intemann

Until the business owners work under the same conditions as their employees, their opinions should carry no more weight than any other. Health and safety considerations should carry equal weight to economic and profit factors. Protect New Mexicans who do the hard, physical labor under extreme environmental conditions.