With all due respect, I vigorously object to regulation 11.5.7 - heat illness and prevention. The additional burden on businesses is onerous. Businesses have failed as a result of the lock downs imposed during Covid. Is there a move afoot to destroy all small businesses in New Mexico? How much more does New Mexico need to put into place in order to be Californicated? I've lived in New Mexico since 1966. Temperatures of 80 degrees are not "life threatening". I'm sorry but I just have to say rule for common sense instead of climate change fads.
