

Steve Edmondson

These rules are unrealistic and will drive up the cost of doing business in New Mexico. Reasonable safety measures in extreme heat are understandable, but the provisions of these rules go well beyond extreme heat and reasonable accommodations. The cost of doing construction projects in the state will increase and the time to complete projects will increase as well. These regulations are well beyond what is reasonable or necessary to insure worker safety.