Your against the safety for workers? I have worked for numerous companies where the owner or supervisor push their workers beyond safe conditions. You can't rely on every business to have common sense. When it's 105 outside and you work in a steel building where it's 120, 1 10 minute break every 2-3 hours is not enough even with fans going. A safe work environment is a healthy environment. Giving an employee a few minutes to cool down is way cheaper than a death from heat. Now that's common sense.
