

keith myers

This is one of those situations where this sounds like a good idea but is better to wait until OSHA come out with a national policy as has been a practice of OSHA to have national standards rather than standards/policies that vary by state