

Larry Rucker

Temperatures in NM are not going to get cooler. Climate change has already increased the number of days that have above average temperatures. This rule is necessary to be proactive instead of reactive to prevent heat related injuries. Protecting the workforce is simply a safety precaution, and it should be management and supervisor responsibility to make sure employees are aware of protections.