

Anonymous Anonymous

I really wish we had this rule in place when I was working last year as a mail carrier baking in the hot aluminum trucks. We could put the window down but we did not have air conditioning or any heating. I would try to pack a lot of water, but it would not stay cold or be enough. I was luckily helped sometimes by customers who chose to give or leave out water and other cold drinks for mail workers.