

GILL SORG

The New Mexico Environment Department (NMED) has proposed a nationally-leading occupational heat standard to protect workers' health and safety.

This is common-sense, and a life-saving rule that must be kept and used for those working outdoors and in non-air-conditioned indoor environments, who are at serious risk of heat-related illness and death of our many workers and others in New Mexico.

I support keeping and increasing this life giving standard.