As a car salesman I know a little about this topic. Again as someone who likes choices, I chose this profession. As much as I appreciate the motherly love and care my employer already provides, I don't want her to have to jump through hoops, using the power and force of government to protect someone who lacks the agency and knowledge of how their own body functions in the heat is what it seems like. Why don't "collective we" use the power of government and its state media to educate the public...that's right...52nd in education. But perhaps using this energy and directing it towards the government educating the people. For the love of the people of New Mexico.

Feed the people, tend the people, feed the people. Help the poor and widows. Back to basics folks, what isn't broke don't fix. What's not working is all this lawless lawmaking. So I make an appeal to you, to utilize the government as a useful resource and educational tool rather than a strong handed pimp. It's not a good look. I appreciate you taking the time to read this, and I appreciate your consideration and support. Kind regards, Lucas
