

Jackson Shirley

This data center would more than double the energy usage and pollution already generated by major cities in New Mexico. With its already dry landscape, New Mexico cannot afford to lose more water. Just a few weeks ago there were families on the reservations struggling to find water because they could not use their wells. If a data center is put here it will put peoples lives at risk, taking away their water and our land. New Mexico is a great place and we work hard to reduce pollution and keep our environment clean. I don't want to see my, and the rest of the state's, efforts erased because of corporate and technological greed.