

Kate Laswell

Dear staff of the NMED,

I write to you to strongly urge you outright deny this proposal.

I hope you realize that so many of the comments in support of this project are falsified by the companies behind this project using bots (or actual people possibly, but I doubt it). Open your eyes. Tons of comments, submitted in chunks at the exact same time, with the same exact message, over and over. Some couldn't even be bothered to spell the name of the place they are trying to destroy correctly. "Doa Ana." Are you serious? They know they aren't getting support but they are desperate to hunker down in our state so they may pollute our air, drain away our water, and put men, women, and children at the risk of death for the sake of money. This is disgusting. It is clear that no residents of New Mexico want this AI data center, yet here we are, using an unreliable comment section that has no meaningful verification for whether comments are GENUINE or not, getting flooded by false support. How is this allowed? how are they able to continue this, even AFTER being caught falsifying comments of support using real people's information without their consent, and facing lawsuits for it? This is insulting, disgusting, and evil. Realize it.

If at this time you will not outright reject project jupiter, the public should be given a further 60 days in order to further comment on this matter. Use a more credible system of comments while you're at it.

Sincerely,
Kate Laswell
