

Melissa Wiggins

We have lived hundreds of thousands of years without data centers and will be able to continue without them. By adding these data centers and destroying our already fragile environment, humanity will cease to exist. Earth will continue without humans, but we cannot prosper without her.