

Naomi Engelman

I strongly opposed the development of a data center in New Mexico. We already do not have enough water to sustain current residential, commercial, and agriculture demands. We cannot eat data, nor can we drink it. It is unconscionable to build such a facility in a desert environment that is experiencing worsening drought conditions. Discussions about a closed-loop water reuse system are bogus and unsustainable. No data centers in New Mexico!