

Lori Lawrence

I am writing to formally log my strong opposition to Project Jupiter. Our region simply cannot handle the burden this project will place on our critical infrastructure, our natural resources, and our families.

First and foremost, we do not have the water. Our regional water supply is already under immense stress, and committing massive amounts of this finite resource to an industrial project of this scale is entirely unsustainable. Water is life in our region, and prioritizing Project Jupiter over the long-term survival of our communities and environment is dangerous and irresponsible.

Furthermore, we cannot afford the energy strain. Our local utility grid is already stretched, and a project with this level of energy demand will inevitably drive up utility costs. Working families in our community are already at a breaking point. Inflation and the skyrocketing cost of basic necessities have left people down here barely able to afford to live as it is. Forcing residents to absorb even higher energy bills to subsidize Project Jupiter is flatly unacceptable.

Our leaders and decision-makers must prioritize the people who actually live, work, and raise families here. We cannot sacrifice our water security and financial stability for Project Jupiter. I urge you to deny the approvals for this project.